The Honorable Lawrence J. Brady
Assistant Secretary for Trade Administration
Department of Commerce

Dear Mr. Brady:

I read with much appreciation the speech you delivered to the NAM on the international economic problems confronting the United States. Certainly we have been far too long in recognizing and taking action on the wide variety of issues posed by our growing economic interdependence with our Western allies, the less developed nations, and the Communist bloc. I sense, however, in this country a growing realization of our economic predicament and a willingness to try to set a better course for the future.

Thank you for taking the time to send me a copy of your speech.

Sincerely,

W. J. Casey
